

Nikolai Tkachev

Front-end developer

Profile

I'm a web developer from Moscow. Currently I work on a remote basis at the logistics company "917 Smith Inc", located in Chicago, USA - I am engaged in the support of the application I created. Programming for me is the art of doing complex things simply, looking at a task from different angles. Each project is like a new interesting quest, carrying a unique experience, a puzzle that can be assembled in various ways. I am constantly developing my skills and am ready for new experiences and projects.

Employment History

Web Developer at 917 Smith Inc, Remote (Chicago)

September 2018 — Present

Designed from scratch TMS for a logistics company. Most of the logic was written in frontend using the VueJS framework. The Google Firebase cloud services (Storage, Realtime Database, Hosting, Functions) were used as a backend. The user interface is implemented using Vuetify. The application has an admin panel for flexible distribution of rights between users, changes in company information, many other useful options. The task of the application is cargo tracking, reporting, distance calculation using the Google Maps API, as well as convenient calculation of company benefits, registration in the counterpart systems, the formation of PDF orders and reports with numerous data filtering options, for which the jspdf library and its jspdf-autotables extension were used.
